Julie Portnoy (Mount Holyoke College, 1971)

Besides the considerable legwork contributed by my student research assistants, editorial and technical advice on various chapters was provided by Tom Stewart (Grossman Publishers), Sylvia L. Mehlman and Richard Rubin (independent), Noel Farley and Walter Morris (Goucher College), Stuart Rawlings (National Law Center), and James Sullivan (Center for Science in the Public Interest). Transcribing and typing were done by Linda Christ and Nancy Keller (University of Maryland), Linda Kirk (Goucher College), Leona Son (Northeastern University), and Susan Fagin and Connie Jo Smith (Center for Study of Responsive Law). WGBH-TV (Boston) generously provided tape recording equipment. Perhaps most important, however—both in time shared and in friendships begun—were the contributions by the subjects of this book, the workers themselves.
